LOSES HIS SOUL
TRYING TO SAVE
LURING BEAUTY
Monk Converts Priestess of Venus to Christianity, Then Tries to Win Her

Massenet's "Thais" to be sung with Kristoffy in the leading role at the Opera House tonight is an opera of the struggle between heathenism and Christianity, the plot being laid in Egypt during the early Christian era.

Twelve holy men seated at their frugal meal welcome home Athanasius, one of their number, who comes back to tell them of his intention to save the soul of Thais, a beautiful woman whom he formerly knew, but who is now a priestess of Venus in the profane temple of Nicolas at Alexandria.

Led by visions in his sleep he bids these brothers farewell and goes back to the wicked city to save her.

Nicolas, who has spent all his fortune for Thais, warns Athanasius against her, but arranges a meeting between them, and slave girls playfully deck the holy man with flowers and gaudy robes. When Thais comes in Athanasius appeals to her to turn from her ways. She swears there is nothing real but love, and he flees in horror.

In the second act is shown the home of Thais with the temple of

"LOHENGRIN" WILL BE GIVEN UNDER COLLEGE CLUB AUSPICES

The first performance of "Lohengrin" ever given in the islands will be staged by the De Folco Grand Opera Company next Friday night. It will be under the auspices of the College Club, which is arranging for this special performance, both as an unusual operatic event and as a benefit for the De Folco Company in its present financial straits.

Seats will go on sale tomorrow at the Promotion Committee office, Young Hotel building. The prices will be $1.50 for the orchestra, $1 dress circle and 50 cents for the gallery seats.

Inasmuch as "Lohengrin" is a long opera, and to give plenty of time for scene shifting, the performance will begin at 7:30 o'clock, and thus should be over at a comparatively early hour.

The College Club is hoping for a large attendance at this performance and urges the general public to cooperate in making "Lohengrin" an all-around success.

Nicolas in the distance. With the entrance of Athanasius there begins a struggle between the sacred love of one and the profane love of the other, Thais causing Athanasius to tremble when she sprinkles her incense on the altar of Venus, and in turn falling at his feet when he tears off his robe and shows his monk's coat beneath.

At last Athanasius's religion conquers, and after destroying her own house and all the gifts that Nicolas has brought her, she and Athanasius set off for the monastery of Albi.

Act three shows Thais entering the monastery, Athanasius giving forth a cry of anguish as she is led away. He returns to his brother Palemon and confesses that in saving the soul of Thais he has lost his own. Stirred by two visions of her past and present life he goes to lure her to his arms, but finds her dying. She sees God and the angels, but he urges her old plea that there is nothing true save life and love. As she dies he falls to the ground with a great cry of anguish.

THIS IS A HEALTHY SPOT.

North Hempstead, L. I., New York, where William K. Vanderbilt, Jr., Mrs. O. H. P. Belmont, Payne Whitney, Howard Gould, Clarence H. Mackay and other prominent men live, is the healthiest town in the state, according to the annual report of Dr. J. H. Bogert, health officer. While the population is more than 23,000, there have been only 189 deaths during the year.

Because Senator Raymond H. Mackay paid a visit to the governor several days ago, the rumor has arisen at Hilo that the senator is a probable choice for land commissioner, to take the place of Joshua D. Tucker whose term expires on March 3.

'THAIS' TONIGHT
UNDER AUSPICES OF 'FOOTLIGHTS'

Under the auspices of The Footlights, a dramatic club of this city, members of the De Folco Grand Opera Company will present the opera "Thais" at the Opera House tonight. The De Folco orchestra will supply the music, playing under the auspices of the local club.

This presentation of the opera will be in the form of a benefit concert, in order that the musicians may not return empty handed to the mainland. On Friday night "Lohengrin" will be staged under the direction of the College Club, and it is expected that other local organizations may hold other concerts of this kind during the week.

Both entertainments are to be given entirely apart from the De Folco organization, save that certain members of that company will have parts in them. De Folco season tickets will not be honored at either of the operas.

Playing "La Boheme" on Saturday night before a deeply appreciative and sympathetic audience the De Folco scored a success at the end of their week of troubles.

Johanna Kristoffy as Mimì, and Paul Galazzi as Marcel were easily the stars of the Saturday night performance, though the audience was generous with its applause for all the singers.

Eugenio de Folco, playing Rudolph, the poet, won an enthusiastic outburst of applause with his "Narrative" in the first act, and responded with a repetition of the solo. Mario Marti played the part of Alcandro cleverly.

The duet between Kristoffy and Galazzi in the third act was one of the most pleasing parts of the entire performance.

NEW VAUDEVILLE ACTS COMING ON LINER TOMORROW

Two good vaudeville acts, together with two rattling good motion pictures, constitute the complete change in bill which the National theater will offer tomorrow evening. The acts are Nolan and Nolan, comedy jugglers, and Tozart, clever actor artist, who paints lightning sketches. The pictures will be one of the Charlie Chaplin series, entitled "Love Pangs and the Rounders," and another showing J. Rufus Wallingford, amusing rogue of the films, making "The Master Touch."

Nolan and Nolan, who are due to arrive in the Sierra tomorrow from Sydney, have just finished a vaudeville tour of Australia. Theirs is a well-rounded turn of considerably better than ordinary standard. Tozart is new to America. He was a standard London attraction until the war broke out, when he went to Australia. He is said to be not only a humorous rapid-fire sketch painter, but an artist of real ability.

A feature of Tozart's present tour is that a percentage of all his earnings are sent to England in the form of a direct contribution to Great Britain's war fund. This is in keeping with a pledge he made before he left London.

Frank Daniels, the Broadway comic opera star, who has been featuring in pictures at the National since Saturday afternoon, will be seen for the last time here tonight. His first attempt at silent acting is so good that those who have seen the film are looking forward to his next appearance.

JOHN BARRYMORE
AS DUKANE WINS
MORE ADMIRERS

Paramount program favorites in new and different roles are appearing almost weekly at the Liberty theater. The latest to be seen in something out of the ordinary is the ever popular John Barrymore, who is the featured artist in "The Incurable Dukane," the early week offering at the Nuuanu street house. Barrymore has won his spurs, locally, as a comedian and he continues in this line of endeavor in this bill but—he branches out, combining with his comedy role a strong dramatic element and a romantic touch.

"The Incurable Dukane" is a straightforward story, told in a hearty, boyish style, with all the meriment of youth crowded into the five parts required to unfold the plot. The incurable Dukane, more familiarly known as Jimmy, leads the gay life of the son of a millionaire until father puts an end to Jimmy's allowance. The spoiled child is sent west, where father is constructing a dam. Jimmy expects to be superintendent of the job but en route he meets an unsocial tramp who insists upon exchanging clothing. Clad in his sad uniform Jimmy reaches the dam-site and the superintendent puts him to work with pick and shovel at $2 per.

Then the fun starts, likewise the romance and the heavier dramatic incidents. Jimmy uncovers a crooked deal in which his father is being worsted by a contractor. He falls in love with the daughter of his father's arch enemy and in the lines of comedy, drama and romance, each following one another in rapid succession, adds to the gaiety of the audience. Last night the Liberty was called upon to use the S. R. O. sign.

"Neal of the Navy" continues to hold a position of preeminence as a serial and is popular with Liberty fans.

FERNANDEZ DECLINES TO BECOME OFFICIAL OF LUSITANA AGAIN

Because Vincent Fernandez, Jr., recently reelected president of the Lusitana society, has refused to be installed as the executive of the organization for the coming year, it is expected that the vice president, Jose P. Rego, will call a special meeting soon to discuss the situation.

Fernandez tendered his resignation on Friday night, but the society rose en masse against the proposition, and voted it down. It was after this that the president refused to be installed. The society has had an active year, the report rendered Friday night showing a credit balance in the general fund of $3,163.58.

The British steamer Lincolnshire, Calcutta for Boston and New York, arrived at Port Said badly damaged, as a result of striking a bank of the Suez Canal.
